

TV Armor Adds Worldwide Shipping Of Its TV Screen Protectors

TV Armor today announces its new partnership with Bongo International, which provides up to 82% off regular shipping by providing U.S. addresses.

FREEHOLD, N.J. (November 11, 2009) ---

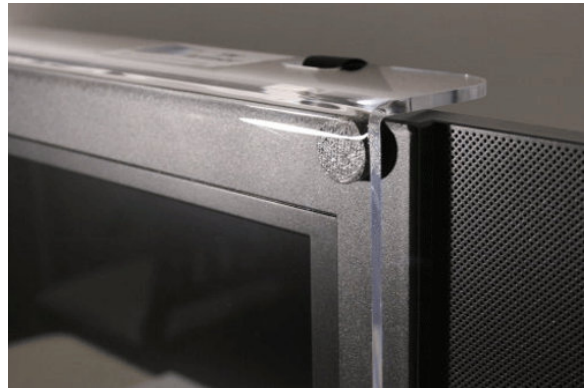

TV Armor (www.TV-Armor.com), manufacturers of the world's premier TV screen protectors for Plasma, LED and LCD televisions, is proud to announce a partnership with Bongo International, thus allowing for international shipping at a fraction of the regular cost.

Bongo International (www.bongous.com) provides international consumers with a physical U.S. address (not a P.O. box), giving them the ability to purchase U.S goods, consolidate them, then have them shipped at costs as much as 82 percent less than more traditional methods. Bongo International also handles any custom related issues

“Quite often the cost of shipping our product overseas can be almost as much as the product itself,” said TV Armor Co-Owner Michael Cunningham. “With Bongo International, we’re now able to offer our TV screen protectors to consumers anywhere in the world with shipping costs that are now much more reasonable.”

TV Armor screen protectors are a revolutionary crystal-clear, optical grade, acrylic shield to protect Plasma, LED and LCD televisions from damage from flying objects such as toys, Wii controllers, balls, etc., as well as marks, scratches, splashes and anything else that can cause even the slightest damage to these sensitive screens – all while maintaining the same vivid quality of high definition TV.

TV Armor fits all size televisions, and attaches in seconds with a Velcro strap around the back of the TV, along with felt spacers. The design is so unobtrusive that many TV Armor customers have commented on how they often forget their TV is protected with TV Armor. Additionally, TV Armor is scratch resistant and easy to clean.
